MOLLISONS CRASH AFTER BRILLIANT FLIGHT OVER ATLANTIC

MISHAP IN LANDING

PLANE DOWN AT BRIDGEPORT CONNECTICUT

Ocean Flown In 31
Hours.

FIRST SIGHTED AT HARBOUR GRACE

New York, To-day.
After a brilliant crossing of the Atlantic, Mr James Mollison and his wife, the former Miss Amy Johnson, have crashed at Bridgeport, Connecticut, while attempting to land.

Their plane, the "Seafarer," passed over New Glasgow Nova Scotia, at 7.45 p.m. (B. S. T.) yesterday, approximately 31 hours after leaving Pendine Sands, Wales. Careful watch for the two intrepid flyers has been kept along the coast of Newfoundland, and the first report of their safe crossing came from Harbour Grace. A plane, which railway and postal officials thought to be the "Seafarer," passed over Robinson, on the west coast of Newfoundland, at 11 a.m. (local time), yesterday, the message stated.

A later message from St. John's, Newfoundland, stated the Mollison plane had been sighted over Robertson's Bay, Newfoundland at 5 p.m. (B.S.T.), and "4 hours later Halifax, Newfoundland," reported that a plane, believed to be the "Seafarer," passed over the city, flying at a high altitude. The Mollisons commenced their flight on Saturday morning from Stag Lane Aerodrome, London. They landed at Pendine to take one extra fuel, using the seven-mile long beach as a taking-off point for their Atlantic crossing. They plan to reach New York without a stop, and from there will attempt to break the world's long-distance flight record, established by the R.A.F. flight from England to Walvis Bay, South Africa, by flying non-stop to Bagdad, a distance of 6,000 miles. (Continued on Page 4.)

Tired And Running Short Of Fuel.

HOW MOLLISONS CRASHED.

Bridgeport later.
In an interview with Reuter, Mr. Mollison stated that he and his wife decided to land when they saw the lights of the Bridgeport aerodrome, as they were running short of fuel. He was so tired that he could not see where he was landing.

The machine landed in a ditch some distance from the field and nose-dived over into soft marsh-land.

When the air port officials dashed to the spot, they heard Mr. Mollison shout, "For God's sake come over here."

The rescuers improvised stretchers, on which the Mollisons were carried to cars and rushed to hospital.

Both are suffering from exhaustion.—Reuter.

50,000 CHEER POST ON LANDING AT NEW YORK

Airman Exhausted By Record Flight.

"COULD FLY ROUND WORLD IN 4 1/2 DAYS"

New York, Yesterday.
Harold Gatty, Wiley Post's companion on the latter's world flight in 1931, was the first to grip the hand of the record-breaker after he had made a perfect landing last night.

As soon as the machine stopped Post rose and waved once to the cheering crowds, which numbered 50,000. He then sank back exhausted and had to be helped from the plane.

He was rushed to a hotel and, when he had recovered, declared that given good weather throughout the flight, he could do the trip in four and a half days.

General Balbo, the Italian Air Minister, who has just completed an epic mass formation flight across the Atlantic, wanted to be among those welcoming the airman, but arrived late owing to the traffic congestion.

Wiley Post arrived in yesterday from Edmonton at 4.59 a.m. (British Summer Time), nearly twenty-two hours ahead of his own record, created with Gatty.

The flight from New York to New York occupied 187 hours.—Reuter.

AIR ARMADA TO LEAVE TO-DAY

New York To Rome, Via Azores.

24 FLYING BOATS TO CROSS ATLANTIC

New York, To-day.

The 24 flying boats of the Italian Air Armada, under the command of General Balbo, Italian Air Minister, are leaving New York, homeward bound, at 11 a.m. (B. S. T.) this morning. They will fly via the Azores with an intermediate stop in Spain.

The Armada was to have left on Wednesday next, and their leaving before schedule indicates that they have received good weather reports.

The planes used in the present flight are of the same make as those used for the formation flight to South America, two years ago. They are known as "Savoia 85," and are capable of a speed of 240 kilometers per hour. All the pilots taking part on the flight are officers, excepting one.

The Armada left Italy on July 2, flying via Amsterdam, Londonderry, Reykjavik (Iceland), Labrador, New Brunswick and Montreal to Chicago, where they attended the World Fair. They reached Chicago on July 15, 2-4-4.63% against 2-4-4.65 on Friday flying to New York.—Reuter.

6 COMMUNISTS SENTENCED TO DEATH BY NAZIS

9 Others Gaoled For Long Terms.

SEQUEL TO SHOOTING OF 2 COLOGNE NAZIS

Brown Shirt Privilege

Berlin, To-day.
Sentence of death has been passed at Cologne on six Communists who were concerned in the street fighting in February in which two Nazis were killed.

Three other Communists were sentenced to 15 years' penal servitude and six to long terms of imprisonment.

This news, following yesterday's new laws, emphasises the Government's determination to crush out all opposition.

It was yesterday announced from Berlin that death would be the penalty in future for any action against public officials or Storm Troopers.

The extreme penalty will also be imposed upon any person guilty of the distribution of so-called atrocity propaganda imperilling the dignity and existence of the State.

These measures were announced by Capt. Goering after an emergency meeting of Ministers, Governors and Nazi leaders in Berlin yesterday.

Nazis Restrict Membership.
Brown Shirts in future may only be worn by persons who joined the Nazi Party before January 30, 1933, according to a new Order just issued.—Reuter.

CHIEF OFFICER INJURED

O. C. Dalziel Dislocates Collar Bone.

NEW SKIPPER FOR HAICHING

Mr. O. C. Dalziel, Chief Officer on the s.s. Haiching, of the Douglas line, was forced to leave his ship at Amoy as the result of injuries sustained from a fall while on shore.

He arrived in Hong Kong yesterday by the s.s. Haiyang suffering from a dislocated collar bone and two fractured ribs.

Mr. Dalziel was acting skipper of the Haiching at the time of the accident, and Chief Officer Lawson, of the s.s. Haiyang, was then given the vessel from Amoy to Foochow and back to Amoy.

Chief Officer Paley, of the s.s. Raining, who has been promoted to captain of the Haiching, will bring the vessel down to Hong Kong from Amoy. The Haiching is due in Hong Kong on Wednesday.

"FENG READY TO CAPITULATE"

"Bluff Called" By Peking.

5 MILES BETWEEN FENG AND GOVERNMENT TROOPS

Peking, Yesterday.

More optimism prevails to-day regarding Charhar. Although now only five miles separate the Government troops from those of General Feng Yu-hsiang, there has been no skirmishing and no sign that hostilities will be precipitated at present.

The delegates returning from Kalgan declare that General Feng is now inclined to be reasonable and, with the local authorities, seems to be waiting the outcome of the Kuling Conference.

There is no question that the revelation that General Feng, the arch-patriot, has been negotiating with the Japanese, comes as a severe blow to his sympathisers in North China, while his evacuation of Doimor after the bombastic claims connected with its "capture," has disgusted many.

Chinese sources state that General Feng is now ready to discuss measures for the abolition of his so-called anti-Japanese Army, on the condition that his men are reorganised into other armies.

The reports add that he is also desirous for peace negotiations for a settlement of the Charhar trouble.

There seems no doubt that the threat of firm measures against General Feng is "calling his bluff." — Reuter.

Feng "Climbing Down"

Peking, To-day.
It is learned from reliable sources that General Feng Yu-hsiang has now commenced the process of "climbing down."

It is stated that Feng told the Peking delegates that he cannot assume full responsibility for the conduct of negotiations with the Peking authorities, as he is entirely surrounded by Generals, Chun-chang and Fang Chen-wu. It is believed that the authorities here have submitted to Kuling a formula which will permit a settlement of the Charhar problem without loss of face to Feng.—Reuter.

U.S. GRAIN CENTRES AGREE TO CHICAGO REGULATIONS

Limit To Operate On Grain Exchange Quotations

New York, To-day.

The Grain Exchanges at Minneapolis, Duluth, Seattle, Portland (Oregon) and Kansas City have indicated they will follow the new Chicago Board of Trade regulations.

The new regulations set Thursday's closing prices as the minimum, below which no trading will be allowed until further notice. The limits in the daily market changes in an upward direction are: Wheat and rye, eight cents a bushel; corn and barley five cents a bushel and oats four cents a bushel.—Reuter.

KOWLOON CABARET SUMMONS

Resident Alleges Disturbance.

CASANOVA DANCING ACADEMY

A summons against Mr. D. Silva, owner and manager of the Casanova Dancing Academy, No. 30, Hankow Road, Kowloon, for "performing and causing to be performed, a disturbance," has been taken out by Mr. E. Lohring of No. 32, Hankow Road. The disturbance is alleged to have taken place between the hours of 8.45 p.m. and midnight in July 8.

The case comes up for hearing at the Kowloon Magistracy on Wednesday.

Interviewed by the "China Mail," Mr. Silva that in spite of losing customers who complained of dull music, he had instructed the orchestra to play softly, to prevent as far as possible, any disturbance. The premises had always been closed at midnight, even before the police warning was issued, he stated.

The summons is the third to be taken out under the Summary Offences Ordinance, the summonses in the previous two cases having being dismissed.

DEVELOPMENT OF N. AUSTRALIA.

Vast Uninhabited Tracts: Charters Granted.

Canberra.

The Australian Government has approved a proposal for the formation of two chartered companies to develop vast uninhabited tracts of northern Australia.

The grant of the charters is conditional on the companies concerned maintaining a "white Australia" policy.

Legislation is foreshadowed which will give the companies preferential treatment in respect of tariff, land tax and income tax.—Reuter.

DAVIS CUP SURPRISE

ELLSWORTH VINES CARRIED OFF COURT

Perry's Match Point In Five-Set Battle.

AMERICAN OVERCOME BY HEAT AND INJURED ANKLE

Auteuil, To-day.

A sensational climax to the British triumph over America in the Inter-Zone Final of the Davis Cup was provided yesterday when Ellsworth Vines, American champion and Wimbledon finalist, was carried off the court, unconscious, from his five set match against Fred Perry.

Leading 6-5 in the final set the American was overcome by the extreme heat and the pain from the injured ankle he sustained in the fourth set. Perry held match point at 7-6 when the famous American collapsed.

Bunny Austin outshone Wilbur Allison in the remaining singles and Britain, by a score of 4 to 1, entered the Challenge Round against France for the second time in three years.

Favoured to break the French sequence of six successive wins Britain will engage France at Auteuil on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The French team has not yet been announced by Rene Lacoste, but it is thought probable that Henri Cochet and Marcel Bernard will be the singles players, and Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon the doubles pair.

Perry was leading Vines 1-6, 6-0, 4-6, 7-5, 7-6 and 40-15 when Vines fainted in the gruelling heat. Perry was the first to the rescue, pouring water on the American, but the latter had to be carried from the court.

Vines had a bad fall in the fourth set and appeared to be shaken, but he went on without showing any perceptible difference in his play.

Vines regained consciousness after 10 minutes and had fully recovered, but the laws provide that when a player receives treatment on the court he is considered to have abandoned the match.

The incident aroused a thousand pitias as Perry played superb tennis, and showed that he was well able to beat Vines at his best in Paris.

Vines served, smashed and drove with terrific punch, but nevertheless made a dozen double-faults. Perry was genius-like in the second set, piercing the American's defence at the net with widely flung passing shots.

Vines led 3-2, in the fourth set and then stumbled when trying to retrieve a difficult shot and hurt his ankle. He recovered quickly and actually led 6-5 in the fifth set.

Perry, however, was brimful of energy and led 7-6. Then Vines twice double-faulted before collapsing.

Brilliant Play By Austin.

DEFEATS ALLISON BY CLEVER COURT TACTICS.

Austin was brilliant, his court tactics enabling him to dominate play.

He sent over a stream of beautiful drives of varied pace and fine placement. He showed a much wider range of strokes than (Continued on Page 8.)

Magnificent Fashion Parade

At Grosvenor House In Aid Of Charity.

HELD UNDER ROYAL PATRONAGE

It is interesting to record that a Ball of especial interest took place in London recently at The Grosvenor House Hotel, Park-lane, with the view of raising urgently-needed funds for the Waifs and Strays Society.

The Ball, under the patronage of Their Royal Highnesses The Duke and Duchess of York, The Duke and Duchess of Portland, and the Earl and Countess of Derby, with the Marchioness of Trencliff as Chairwoman, was an enormous success, due in no small measure, to the efforts of Mr. Edward H. Symonds (Chairman of The House of Reville, Dress-makers to H. M. Queen Mary), who in addition to being a member of the special Ball Committee, was pleased to undertake the presentation of an Evening Gown Parade of Society Ladies accompanied by a Guard of Honour of this Season's Debutantes.

British Fabrics Displayed. The Gowns worn by the ladies taking part in this Parade and Guard of Honour were all British, both as to Fabrics and Fashions, and the materials displayed were of such outstanding merit and beauty as to demonstrate beyond all reasonable doubt that the dress fabrics produced in Great Britain are no less Fashion-right and eye-appealing than those of Continental origin.

The function was a brilliant one in every sense of the terms. Diamonds and pearls were much in evidence, almost equalling the magnificence of a court at Buckingham Palace.

Lady Hingworth of Denton, leading the Parade in her Reville Creation of ivory and silver satin, manufactured by Driver Bros., of Silsden, Yorkshire, received a great reception as she appeared through the curtains into the full blaze of the limelight.

Her Ladyship's diamond 'four-de-lis' tiara, diamond necklace, bracelets, and diamond and aquamarine brooch, sparkled and scintillated as she descended the staircase and glided gracefully down the centre of the ballroom.

London Society Prominent. Among other prominent members of London Society who demonstrated British fashions and British fabrics in this parade were—

Lady St. John of Bleso, in Coronation blue satin; Lady Polson in royal-blue silk velvet; Mrs. Warren Pearl in duck-egg-blue Nottingham lace; Lady Chichester in the new 'windswept' satin; Miss Gwynneth Lloyd in polished novelty 'mirror satin' the polished lacquer finish of this fascinating and supple material being well described by the word, 'mirror,' and Miss Mary Boden.

In presenting the Fashion Parade, the Rt. Hon. The Lord St. John of Bleso stated that spectators would be compelled to admit that Great Britain can now produce materials that compare very favourably with any materials now manufactured on the Continent, and that the models created by the House of Reville are no less original and distinguished than those of the great houses of Paris.

WATERPROOFING SHOES

A little castor oil applied to the uppers of boots and shoes makes them waterproof. Apply this with a paint brush, making sure the oil is evenly absorbed. If the shoes are slightly damp at the time this will help but they must never be quite wet.

INNOVATIONS FROM SCHIAPARELLI

Hookless Dress

Innovations chez Schiaparelli are her hookless dress made with a fitted high neck and waist of elastic ribbon and her tasseled pill-box Corsican tams. Lucile Parry is showing furless all-satin end-of-the-day ensembles in black with pastel linings and trims. Worth and Lelong make dark organic bib collarettes with light print frocks.

COAT LENGTHS.

There is much variety in coat lengths. They may be just to the waist, to the hips, or three-quarter length.

When two different colours are used same colour as the dress put a smart finish to the coat.

SATURDAY'S SOLUTION.

Dry Ways For Damp Weather

Seasonable Precautions In The Home.

RAINCOAT CARE

Now that the wet weather is definitely here we should take all precautions against contracting chills and kindred ailments. For those whose occupation takes them out of the house a reliable rainproof, preferably of light weight, should be carried over the arm or in a handy little attache case as preferred.

Be very careful when buying a mackintosh or raincoat for in our warm climate many rubberised ones prove very unsatisfactory after a little while. The rubber seems to melt and a gummed-up garment results. School children especially should be adequately protected by raincoats and umbrellas. It is a good plan to arrange for an entire change of clothing for children who have to walk some distance to their school.

Windows Need Watching.

Windows must be carefully manipulated at this time in order to prevent a sudden shower from blowing into the room and ruining the furniture and damping the linen. Talking of linen reminds me that bed-linen, should put out to sun on intervening sunny days in order to make sure that it is thoroughly dry before being put on to the beds. Dhobies have a way of bringing quite damp linen back during wet weather. Drying it on a sunny verandah or before a fire indoors is to be recommended especially in the case of children and invalids.

The Damp Wardrobe.

If your wardrobe show a tendency to dampness or if their contents appear to be getting mouldy a little precipitated lime placed on a saucer and left in the almirah will greatly decrease any dampness there may be.

Ordinary white shoe-cream is an excellent preservative of some book-covers. Both linen and leather backs respond well to a little polish and a rub and certainly this treatment is excellent for keeping mould at bay in our warm damp climate.

It pays to attend to leaky tiles the moment they are discovered for walls and floors can become badly marked where this is neglected, to say nothing of the unwholesomeness of wet places about the house.

Wax Polishing.

Whereas in the hot weather many floors were the cooler and fresher for a soap-and-water wash it is more advisable to resort to waxing when there is dampness in the atmosphere. Waxpolishing is healthier and more cheerful on wet days.

Good coir or wire door mats should be much in evidence to prevent muddy feet from introducing dirt into well-kept interiors. Net window curtains must be replaced by stout but cheerful casement or prettiness curtains if the windows are to look appropriately dressed for monsoonic conditions.

Brass-ware should be put away with the exception of the more essential articles as nothing is more depressing to see than a lot of dingy brass ornaments about the house.

Highly polished wood-work and a bright interior colour scheme is all that is wanted to make the home attractive when outdoor conditions are forbidding.

"JUST MY LUCK"—CENTRAL THEATRE.

Starring Ralph Lynn and Winifred Shottor, "Just My Luck," now showing at the Central Theatre, is a screen adaptation of the Aldwych farce, "Fifty-Fifty."

The story affords Ralph Lynn characteristic screen material, and the outdoor locations, particularly the race-course scenes, extend the interest far beyond the possibilities of the stage.

Ralph Lynn is seen as a timid music teacher. A chance meeting with a prosperous business man changes his outlook in life, and adorning himself as a well-dressed business man, he rushes onward to trouble and success. His interpretation of the character is excellent and Winifred Shottor shows great advance as a screen actress.

"WHAT, NO BEER"—QUEEN'S THEATRE.

"What, No Beer," now showing at the Queen's Theatre, provides unusual comedy and entertainment.

In this picture Buster Keaton and Jimmy Durante, try to run a brewery. They become involved with the local beer-running factions and end up with the police raiding their plant. The situation is further complicated when Buster falls in love with the sweetheart of one of the beer barons, believing her to be a sweet young society girl.

These two comedians are as usual hilariously funny, and are fortunate in having so happy a vehicle for their riotous antics. Phyllis Barry, the young English actress, is seen at her best in the romantic-comedy part of the story.

MAIL REVIEW

"ZOO IN BUDAPEST"—KING'S THEATRE.

"Zoo in Budapest," now showing at the King's Theatre, is a story built around the activities and with the atmosphere of a great zoological park. It deals with the romance of a young man who has lived all his life among the animals, and a simple unsophisticated orphan girl who comes to the zoo for a lesson in natural history. They meet and find themselves strangely in love.

Behind this gentle love theme, however, lies the terrifying pattern of caged beasts, the source from which the plot gains its momentum and moves from one overwhelming thrill to another. Loretta Young and Gene Raymond are featured in the title roles, with a supporting cast which includes O. P. Heggie, Sally Albright, Murray Kinnell and Ruth Warren.

"THE PASSIONATE PLUMBER"—ORIENTAL THEATRE.

"The Passionate Plumber" now showing at the Oriental Theatre, is the spiciest and most amusing comedy yet turned out by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Buster Keaton has the title role and the inimitable Jimmy "Schnozle" Durante and the riotous Polly Moran are in support. Irene Purcell plays opposite Keaton, and the cast also includes Gilbert Roland, Mona Maria, Maude Eburne, Henry Armetta, Paul Porcasi, Jean Del Val and August Tolleire.

"SKYSCRAPER SOULS"—STAR THEATRE.

From the opening scene to the fade-out "Skyscraper Souls," the M-G-M production now being screened at Star Theatre, keeps up the suspense, not because it is stuffed with fantasy or unbelievable situations, but because it is a thrilling revelation of life in a giant New York skyscraper.

One of the principal characters is played by Warren William, with Maureen O'Sullivan, Gregory Ratoff, Norman Foster, and Anita Page.

"TELL ME TO-NIGHT"—MAJESTIC THEATRE.

"Tell Me To-night," now showing at the Majestic Theatre is a Gaumont-Ufa production, and is undoubtedly one of the best musical comedies since "Sunshine Sue."

The scenery is magnificent and the story full of sparkle and fun. Jan Klepura, who plays the part of the singer, has a very powerful voice and his rendering of "Tell Me To-night," the theme song, is a feature of the film.

SLAMS VIA MINIMUM BIDDING ROUTES

There is no Slam harder to reach than a notrump Slam. Usually the strength is so distributed between the two hands that neither player can properly convey his true values. When such a Slam is reached it is usually via minimum bidding routes, which sounds impossible. Actually, this kind of bidding is the finest there is, and particularly shows partnership co-operation, as each player is willing to pass the decision on to his partner. The following hand exemplifies this:

North—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable

1—The suit, is none too good, but this bid is preferable to a non-vulnerable notrump; bid would probably be preferred.

2—The ultra-shaded spade suit is shown because the hand is too strong for one notrump; two or three diamonds would not picture the hand correctly, and two notrump is undesirable on account of the doubleton heart.

3—Three notrump could not be criticized, but since this bid is in itself a mild Slam try, East decided to reserve one bid on account of the weak nature of his original suit.

4—An inferential Force: East cannot possibly pass.

5—The first indication that West's hand contains Slam possibilities. The four notrump bid at this stage is a little weaker than a four notrump over right over East's

CHICAGO MARRIAGE BOOM

1933 Figures Best For Three Years.

Chicago. The marriage license depression is over here, declares the chief of the County Clerk's Office.

His figures for the first five months of this year show an increase in the number of licenses issued for the first time in three years, during which there had been a steady decline.

The gain for the first five months was 3 per cent over the figure for the same period of last year.—Reuter.

two notrump.
6—Merely an attempt to double-cross South. Obviously, the heart Opening is preferable from East's standpoint, and the bid is made in an endeavor to convince South that a heart Opening is not desired. A six notrump bid here would be just the game, but there is a possibility of the strategy working.

7—A minimum bid, designed to stop the hand from reaching six if that number is too many.

8—Obviously East cannot be signed off. The play is quite simple, as the diamond finesse can be taken only one way. The Opening lead was a spade, and Declarer took 3 spade tricks, 5 diamond tricks, 3 club tricks and 1 heart trick. A Grand Slam can be made by guessing the club finesse.

LITERARY NOTES

VICKI BAUM'S
MAGIC WAND"She Creates An Illusion
So Skillfully . . ."

WORK OF FLAWLESS TECHNIQUE

Miss Vicki Baum is more of a conjuror than a novelist. She creates an illusion so skillfully that the reader does not realise that it is an illusion; she waves her wand, or perhaps her fountain pen, and there, in "Martin's Summer," is Martin Heli, a penniless chemist, earning his living as a swimming instructor at a small resort in the Austrian Tyrol, and beloved of every woman within hailing distance.

The situation is rendered more amusing by the fact that he falls in love with a girl whose twin sister is practically indistinguishable from her, and that he is waiting to hear of the fate of an invention which, if it succeeds, will make him rich.

Flawless Technique. Meanwhile, he is doubly afflicted by a lack of food and a surplus of admiration, including that of an elfin creature called Puck, and of pupils and acquaintances ranging from a waitress to a doctor's wife—not to mention the girl whose affection he returns and her somewhat shadowy sister, Carla.

"Martin's Summer," it appears, is an early product of Miss Baum's pen, but the technique is as flawless as that of her later novels.

Entertaining While It Lasts.

It is not until the swimming season is over and the story ended that the reader realises that, however credulous he may be, one swallow does not make a summer. The glittering gold of the conjuror proves but tinsel, and the rabbits which have come so naturally from the hat are only cotton wool; the entertainment, however, while it lasted, was excellent.

PETER WARLOCK'S WRITINGS.

A Collector's Task.

London. Mr. E. Arnold Dowbiggin, an analytical chemist and works manager at a Lancaster factory, has for two years been collecting the writings of Philip Heseltine, better known as Peter Warlock, the young English composer who met with a tragic end in December, 1930, at the age of 34.

Mr. Dowbiggin's task has been a difficult one, and has involved, among other things, the writing of over a thousand letters, innumerable telephone calls, the insertion of advertisements in every musical paper in the country, and the scrutinising of hundreds of files. Mr. Dowbiggin spoke recently to a reporter of some of the difficulties of his task.

"I felt," he said, "that a book of Peter Warlock's selected writings—for his writings were almost as brilliant as his composition—ought to be compiled, and so my leisure for the past two years has been spent in trying to collect them. Not one single answer did I get from the dozens of advertisements I inserted, and many of the sources which I thought would be most fruitful have proved utterly blank. Another difficulty arose from the fact that Peter Warlock wrote under any pseudonym that came into his head, and I only learned this after months of research, through writing to his many friends, who knew of this little peculiarity of his."

Mr. Dowbiggin said that it was through his songs that he first came into contact with Peter Warlock. "Warlock's songs entirely fascinated me, and I did my best to get his works better known in the North. In this connection I corresponded with him for many years before I met him, when we became on very friendly terms. In fact, the very last song he ever composed, entitled 'Bethlehem Dawn,' was dedicated to me, and on the very day before his death I got a bundle of manuscripts from him."

Mr. Dowbiggin said that he had compiled his book under the auspices of Mr. Bernard van Dieren, the composer, who is sole executor for Peter Warlock.

HOWARD SPRING'S
Guide To New Books

Titans of Literature. By Burnton Rascoe. (Routledge, 12s. 6d.) This is a series of short studies of famous men of letters. All men. Mr. Rascoe, combing through the ages, has, apparently, not found one woman worthy to mate with his Titans.

Beginning with "Homer and Greek Legend," he touches on Latin literature, Italian, the medieval letters of France, England, France, Spain, Germany, America; all claim his attention, and coming up to such modern figures as Anatole France, Proust and George Moore, he concludes with "A Short History of the Development of Literature since the Victorian Period."

Necessarily, walking so long a road with Mr. Rascoe, one differs from him now and then concerning the significance of some signposts and landmarks; but he is a refreshing companion and enlivens the journey with salty individual opinions. His claim that his errors are "the honest errors of an escape from pedantry" is freely admissible.

He rubs Milton's nose pretty hard in the dirt, though consenting to leave him half a wing to flutter away with; and he rejoiced me, at least, by finding Henry James "a fat, wistful remittance man with a passion for elegance." It is pleasing to know that, in Mr. Rascoe's opinion at any rate, we have Balzac superior living to-day—Theodore Dreiser.

When Mr. Rascoe says of Dickens, "His humour deprived him of a sense of proportion," I do not follow him. It seems to me that a sense of humour and a sense of proportion are almost the same thing. Who so disproportionate as the pompous ass?

Mr. Rascoe put his foot in it with Mr. H. G. Wells, calling him a "good concoction of scientific mystery yarns à la Jules Verne"; a view of Mr. Wells' achievement which he himself protested against in the preface to his collected tales. And, indeed, what Wells did and what Verne did are as different as chalk and cheese. But many are the points on which one differs from Mr. Rascoe, he has produced a racy readable book.

Oriental Plot.

Immaculate. By Maud Flannery. (Hutchinson, 7s. 6d.)

We meet the bachelor Sir Henry and his sister Lady Caroline amid the punkahs and ice and eternal sunshine of Rangoon. He is the conventional English governor, obsessed by a formal sense of "duty," she the woman to whom, conventionally, despite her forty years, every subaltern makes love.

Back from a narrow society in which they are everybody they come to a changed England in which they are nobody. Lady Caroline falls in love with Abel, a mad composer fifteen years her junior, and marries him. Sir Henry encounters Beth, a "modern" girl, running an estate agent's office. Poor elder brother! She calls him "Hen," takes him to a party where he proposes marriage, she answers: "Dear man! There are such things as lovers."

The book on the whole disappointed me because I felt that, somewhere beneath a load of stuff, Miss Flannery has vital talent. She seems here to be writing about people out of books, not people out of life. The one being you feel she has herself created is the musician Abel. He, in his madness, which is little more than savage contempt for the caricatures that are called sane people, is disturbingly real and a creation any novelist might be proud of.

But Miss Flannery needs to concentrate; she lacks form. The pruning-knife might easily help her to produce a really pleasing book.

A Gentleman in Paris.

Tricolor. By Dora Barford. (Hodder and Stoughton, 7s. 6d.)

This is the tale of how Philip Moreland, gentleman, of London, fared in Paris at that point in the Revolution when the Bastille was taken.

There is not a card in the whole pack of cloak and sword romance that Miss Barford does not "play with skill, and if you are not tired of the water-thinness to which this convention has worn, you should find joy in the handsome youth who—what a surprise!—was, after all, a girl in the duels where men who had lived like scoundrels contrived to "die like gentlemen;" in the easy Englishman overcoming odds of four to one; in the ratle of "Ma fols!" and "Mon Dieu;" in the gentleman who picked up "a small square of cambric and white lace" and presses it to his burning lips again and again.

This is how the people talk: "Monsieur," I said, "I am in some pain; but not so much from my injured arm as from the apprehension that I have proved a source of grave inconvenience to those upon whose charity I have no claim and whose kindness I can never hope to repay." Did anyone ever talk like that on this earth? I doubt it.

Mackail Collection.

Having Fun. By Denis Mackail. (Hodder and Stoughton, 7s. 6d.)

There are more than 600 pages in this book. It should see you a long way through a holiday. Even if you are lucky enough to be able to take a month off, you have one story a day.

For here are 30 short stories in which Mr. Mackail has done his best as he tells us in a foreword "to enliven railway journeys and dentist's waiting rooms."

The jacket says: "Pretty girls, shy young men, newly-married couples, pompous personages, waiters, hostesses, and literary rents: he likes them and laughs at them." And in those expanding moods when you feel that people are likeable and laughable, Mr. Mackail is the man to turn to. At the worst, as he says, his work will not do you "any great or permanent harm." At the best you will have some fun with a determinedly breezy companion.

Statesman's Year Book.

The Statesman's Year Book. Edited by Mr. E. Epstein. (Macmillan, 41s.)

This is the seventieth annual publication of this famous reference book. The editor reminds us how times have changed since its first appearance in 1864.

There were then in Europe 15 monarchies and one republic; to-day there are eight monarchies and eleven republics. That is a sensational change; but over the world there are changes which even the alertest eye is liable to overlook. They are all tabulated here.

Every country in the world is dealt with and information given under these headings: Constitution and government, local government, area and population, education, justice and crime, finance, production and industry, commerce and communications. There is added after each country a list of books which will fill in any gaps that the reader still finds.

An invaluable book, not only for the statesman but for anyone who wishes to be well informed.

For Country-Lovers.

The Landscape of England. By Charles R. Ford. (Ratsford, 6d.)

Mr. Ford's writing, the drawings by Brian Cook and the excellent photographs combine to make this a true presentation of the landscape of England.

It is not merely a collection of pretty pictures. The busy stir of the Pool of London is here as well as the quiet waters of Lakeland, the blazing factory windows of the North as well as the pastoral charm of the South and West, the tumbled hills of the Pennines as well as the placid flats of Norfolk.

It is in every way a good book, and should help to foster those habits of "loving observation" which Mr. G. M. Trevelyan speaks of in his foreword.

"THE GLASS WALL" IN BOOK FORM.

Miss DeLafayette's play, "The Glass Wall," which has been produced at the Embassy Theatre, is in Gollancz's latest list. Three of Gollancz's new books have been described by Norman Collins, who has "discovered" them since he, joined this very interesting house as Deputy Chairman.

POEM COLLECTION.

Professor Grierson is one of the most learned students of John Donne. "The Poems of John Donne," edited by Herbert Grierson, will be one of the new books in the Oxford Standard Authors.

AN ELIZABETHAN OF OUR DAY

Odyssey Of A Wanderer

The Book of Talbot. By Violet Clifton. (Faber, 15s.)

This astonishing book fits into none of the normal categories. As one reads, it becomes more and more difficult to believe that we are following the life history of a man of our own times, so heroic, so Elizabethan does it all seem.

There is heroism in plenty around us, but not this heroism which is heroism for its own sake, a deliberate search for self-probation far away from the precincts of civilisation, among savage and elemental forces.

"The Book of Talbot" is the life of an English aristocrat, Talbot Clifton, written by his widow. Talbot Clifton was born in 1868, the heir to vast estates in the Tyldes district of Lancashire. He went to Eton and to Cambridge, but his restless spirit soon carried him into a sterner academy.

Before he was 20 he had been twice round the world.

Of these travels, and of other early adventures in California, in Mexico, and elsewhere, we hear only echoes in this volume. We begin with "The Little Book of Alaska," telling the story of a trek to the Yukon and the Klondyke rivers, the year before the Gold Rush.

Then comes "The Book of the Barren Lands," an account of a journey by sleigh, boat and ship to the unmapped tracts to the north of Hudson's Bay, to search for some trace of the lost explorer Franklin.

From the frozen North we pass to the furnace of Africa, from Africa to Siberia ("The Book of Boreas") to Tibet, to Burma, to South America (here Clifton met Violet Beauclerk, who was to become his wife), to Baghdad, and Persia, and again, after many years, to Africa. The whole world diminishes before the energy of this magnificent English giant, carrying everywhere his courage, his cunning, his volume of Shakespeare, and his flute.

There is something so grandiose and world-embracing in his manner that even the Great War passes comparatively unobserved, a European incident. He died in 1928, on his way to Africa again.

This is a rich eventful book of more than 400 pages. It is impossible to convey its extraordinary quality. Composed partly of the diaries which Talbot Clifton himself kept in a bright and concise Elizabethan English, and for the rest, so far as Violet Clifton is concerned, in a highly charged romantic prose, the book is unique as art and as biography.

It is remarkably vivid and visual: hundreds of scenes are "realised" as only well-written accounts of actual adventures can be.

ECHO OF BATTLE
OF JUTLAND.Admiral Von Hipper's
Biography.

The new house of Rich and Cowan will publish a biography of Admiral von Hipper, who "found fame in the Jutland engagement. He commanded the German battle cruiser squadron there, and afterwards he was Commander-in-Chief of the German High Seas Fleet."

British naval opinion has ranked him high as a sailor, and, needless to say, his biographer, Capt. von Waldeyer-Hartz does so in this book.

PROFESSOR ROBERTSON DEAD

The death in a London nursing home was announced recently of Professor John George Robertson, since 1905 Professor of the German Language and Literature at the University of London, and since 1924 Director of the Department of Scandinavian Studies. He was also editor of the "Modern Language Review."

Born in Glasgow in 1867, Professor Robertson was educated at the Universities of Glasgow and Leipzig.

He was the author of several books, and was a leading authority in this country on German literature.

Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch has written a new introduction for a popular edition which Dent is publishing of "The Legends-Casamian history of English literature."

Cricket Controversy.

It is quite customary for sportsmen, as do old soldiers, to fight their battles over again, discussing the chances and changes of the fray. These reminiscences, however, are, in general, animated by a friendly spirit; games on the field of sport should be played without rancour. No grudges should be borne about the result, and if contests are to leave behind them recriminations and counter-recriminations, they were better abandoned. The visit to Australia of the M.C.C.'s team last season will go down to history because of certain incidents with which it was associated, and which must be deplored by all lovers of cricket. Unfortunately the controversy has not ended with the drawing of stumps. The organisations controlling the game in the two leading cricket nations of the world are still at odds, and players, relieved from the rule which prohibits them from writing for the Press while tours are in progress, have taken full advantage of their liberty to ventilate their views. It is arguable that this liberty has been in danger of being construed too freely. The M.C.C.'s reply to the protest of the Australian Board of Control against "bodyline" bowling has not done very much to clear the air, except that it intimates that final expression of opinion on the question is reserved until the latter has been discussed at a special meeting of the Imperial Cricket Conference. This is the tribunal most competent to sit in judgment, and it would be wrong to allow the issue to be clouded by utterances of people who, however skilful exponents or experienced observers of the game they may be, are not in the position to prescribe its laws. The M.C.C. objects to the use of the term "bodyline" bowling, which is thought to involve a confusion of ideas with "leg-theory" long acknowledged to be legitimate, and which implies a deliberate attempt to injure the batsman. The M.C.C. also considers that the suggestion to cast upon the umpires the responsibility of deciding whether a fast bowler is trying to frighten a batsman from defending his wicket is impracticable. A jury of twelve, let alone one umpire, would have difficulty in arriving at a true verdict. Meanwhile the M.C.C. has handed the Board of Roland for its Oliver in its tactless cablegram, the Board described the methods of certain English bowlers as unsportsmanlike. The accusation has naturally rankled; the M.C.C. has retorted by condemning the behaviour of a section of Australian barrackers as unsportsmanlike, and submitting that unless these exhibitions of excessive zeal can be curbed, the continuance of international matches will not be in the best interests of cricket. The vast majority of Australians profoundly deprecate the unseemly demonstrations to which the M.C.C. alludes. "Barracking" has long been a sore point. Most of it is not malicious; much of it is an amusing commentary on the play. Some, unhappily, is designed intentionally to embarrass players. Yet it is hard to see what the authorities can do to check the practice. A policeman cannot be stationed beside every spectator to restrain his ill-mannered outbursts, and the boundary between what is and what is not permissible in criticism is almost impossible to define on the spur of the moment. As for fast bowling directed at the leg stump and with a field closely packed to leg, it is imperative that if international cricket is to retain its popular appeal the cricketing countries of the Empire should reach an agreement on the subject. There is a code which is observed in all sport worthy of the name. To win is desirable, and in the pursuit of success hard knocks must be expected. In cricket, fast bowling entails a necessary element of intimidation. That is why fast bowlers are picked in a team, and it would be unfair to require of them perfect length and aim. These are part of the risks inherent to the game. But an axiom of sport is that victory must not be gained by measures designed to inflict harm upon an opponent or scare him into surrender. Whether the type of bowling to which exception has been taken violates this canon the conference will decide. It will also decide whether these tactics will impair the enjoyment of a noble game, beloved by players and onlookers alike.

HERE, THERE and EVERYWHERE

Henry VI. Of France.
The birth of a son and heir to the Comte de Paris will be hailed with great rejoicing among the aristocrats of the Faubourg St. Germain. The direct line of the French Royal family was in danger of extinction, as the present Pretender, the Duc de Guise or Jean IV., had three daughters, but only one son.
The baby will in due course be known as Henry VI.—he has the same name as his father. If present customs are maintained he will have a curious existence.
He will own Chambord, the largest house in France, but he will never be allowed to set foot in his own country. He will be the head of a family which claims five thrones and no longer possesses one. He will have to marry a cousin.

As Old As Politics.

Here is the latest story told at Westminster against the politicians:
A surgeon, an architect and a politician disputed which belonged to the oldest profession.
The surgeon claimed the distinction because Eve was made from Adam's rib. That, he contended, was surgery.
"But," said the architect, "before the advent of Adam order was made out of chaos. That was architecture."
"Admitted," said the politician, "but who created the chaos?"

Bored By Tiger Hunting

Arranging tiger hunts is one of the duties of the Nawab Mahdi Yar Jung of Hyderabad, who is now in London.

He has organised thrills for scores of distinguished visitors to Hyderabad, where he is a member of the Executive Council.

"But," he said, "tiger hunting has never appealed to me. It would bore me. It is not exciting."

"A tiger once jumped over a hedge and landed at my brother's feet. He stood perfectly still. The tiger just sniffed him up and down—and walked away."

THE TRANSFORMATION OF ENGLAND

OLD OBJECTIVES STILL UNATTAINED

CHANGE FOR WORSE SINCE WAR

(By A. A. B.)

The words with which I head this article are taken from the only really candid autobiography I have ever read in English—why cannot men be honest to themselves?—by J. Strachey Barnes. Mr. Barnes served and was wounded in the Air Force, and the words conclude a letter written in 1916 to an intimate:

"No, I hope this will not be a war to end war. Provided they come not too frequently and are fought for the clear purpose of enabling one's own people to possess more exuberant life and opportunities of life, they are excellent hygiene. . . . The hundreds of thousands of dead will have laid down their lives in vain if the generation which is born now do not grow to the majority in an England transformed—an England without slums, with smaller towns, with unemployment for the fit, with a thriving and populous countryside, with abundant skilled craftsmen again making beautiful things. Twenty years hence we shall see if England was worth fighting for," etc.

Not 20, but 18 years have passed since the date of this letter, which is only the Eton and Cambridge version of Mr. Lloyd George's "a country fit for heroes to live in." Also for the blindness of idealism! England was well worth fighting for in 1916, as she is in 1933, and ever will be, but not for the objectives enumerated by the officer in the Flying Force or by the then Prime Minister.

I am no pacifist, nor an irrational pessimist, but my eyes and ears compel me to ask, is England transformed? Yes, she is, but not for the better; for the worse. Not a single one of the objectives mentioned by Mr. Barnes in his letter, or by Mr. Lloyd George in his speeches, have been attained. Is England without slums, and are towns smaller? Has unemployment disappeared? Where is the thriving and populous countryside? Where do you find abundant skilled craftsmen making beautiful things?

Countryside Deserted.

The countryside is deserted; the skilled craftsman and his apprenticeship guilds have been captured by the trades unions, and he sent by them to get the dole. How can anyone make beautiful things without teaching and discipline and example? We are surrendering the finer side of civilisation to the Latins and the Orientals. How can it be otherwise when, as every year passes, we are sitting on our necks with greater complacency the yoke of the ignorant, the emotional and the unworthy? Consider the five Reform Acts, passed between 1832 and 1929, and you will get a clear idea of our rapid political declension. The great Reform Bill of 1832, denounced by crazy Cassandras like the Duke of Wellington, added 500,000 voters to the register, making a total of 1,000,000. In 1867, with the reluctant assistance of the Tories, 1,000,000 new voters were enfranchised. In 1884, 2,000,000 new voters were added. In 1918 Lords Ulswater and Long, with a recklessness for which there was no excuse, added 13,000,000 new voters to the register, including women over 30, paupers, and soldiers between 19 and 21, bringing the total up to 21,000,000.

In 1929, as a crowning act of folly and corruption, Mr. Baldwin added 5,000,000 flappers, or girls of 21, on equal terms with men, who promptly used their votes to put Mr. Baldwin out and Mr. MacDonald in, thus bringing the country to the verge of ruin. What followed? The two arch-architects of confusion joined hands, and now rule the country on the principle that two blacks make a white!

Electorate Increase.

In less than a century, from 1832 to 1929, the electorate has been increased from 1,000,000 to 29,000,000. Our fathers and grandfathers were content to add 1,000,000 at a time, and then they wanted to know who their new partners were, and what, if any, were their qualifications for the trust.

Is it maintained that 20 times more Englishmen are qualified to vote than in 1832? Or that women have dulcified public manners and raised the standard of political life? On the contrary, never have public manners, in the streets, in shops, in restaurants, in all places of public resort, been ruder and more brutal than they are to-day. Hotel and lodging-house keepers advertise "No old people or children received." Such conduct would have been impossible, even 50 years ago; as would the insolence and inefficiency of a certain type of domestic servant. The crazy Cassandras are invariably right in the long run.

As for the standard of political life, the "machine" is now all-powerful, and the independent member is a thing of the past. Mr. Baldwin was quite right when he pleaded that he was not so simple as he looked. With the machine at his back he can serenely meet a dozen rebellious meetings.

Russian Slaughter.

What does the public think of the Prime Minister's luncheon party? Litvinoff, though he did not personally participate, is the authorised representative of a gang of regicides who butchered their Sovereign, his wife and his young family in a cellar, who murdered and robbed every landowner they could catch, who slaughtered thousands of innocent priests and rifled their churches, and who have practically exterminated their professional and commercial classes.

Revolutions are not made with rose-water, I know. But how stands the case to-day, 16 years after the revolution? Kereisky, who must know, says that there are 160,000,000 Russians on the verge of famine, eating horseflesh or gnawing the bark of trees. In the forests of the North there are herds of starved slaves, beaten, underfed, torn from their families, for one half the year with hands and feet frost-bitten, for the other half whipped to their tasks under a fierce sun, in order that they may cut down enough logs to undersell the forests of England and Scotland.

To get cheap docks and window frames and coffins is apparently all that our timber merchants care about. With a cynicism and impudence that surpass the offer to pay £1,000,000 in satisfaction of the £13,000,000 awarded to the Lena Gold Fields by the Berlin arbitration, the Soviet now proposes to traffic in the persons of British subjects! Messrs. Macdonald and Thornton are either innocent or guilty. If innocent, they ought to have been released long ago, with apology and compensation. If

LESS BRITISH COAL FOR BELGIUM

10 Per Cent. Drop During June.

EFFECT OF NEW TARIFFS

Brussels.
Owing to further quota restrictions, at least 10 per cent less British coal is allowed to be imported into Belgium during June 1933. This means almost 8,000 tons less than was permitted during the month of May.
During June Great Britain was allowed to import into Belgium only 42.4 per cent of the monthly average of British coal she imported in the first six months of 1931. The tonnage was therefore 71,120 tons as against 79,030 tons imported during May 1933 when the quota was 47.2 per cent.

It is generally expected that the July coal quota for British mines will show a still further reduction. The quota regime in Belgium is now to be applied to certain foodstuffs, including bacon, preserved pork, sausages and corned beef.

Cloudy weather, with occasional rain and moderate south-west winds, is forecasted in the weather report issued from the Royal Observatory, this morning.

VINES COLLAPSES

Allison, who, however, played dogged tennis. Revealing the form that swept Vines off the court in the opening singles Austin took the first set at 6-2.

The American hit well on the forehand and served powerfully with a disconcerting spin, especially in the second set, which he won at 9-7 after Austin had led 6-5 and 7-6.

Austin won the third set mainly on snappy close up volleying.

Austin led 2-0 in the fourth set. The score went to 2-2, 4-2 in favour of the Englishman, and then 4-3, before Austin broke through Allison's service to take the set and match at 6-4.

U.S. Doubles Win.

George Lott and John Van Ryn caused a surprise when they beat Pat Hughes and Perry by 8-6, 6-4, 6-1 in convincing style.

The British players tempted Lott with lobs to extract a return for a kill, and these tactics took Britain ahead at 5-3. The Americans, however, levelled at 5-4 with wonderful smashing, and after Hughes had reached set point on his service the Americans led 6-5. The Englishmen levelled at 6-6, but their opponents finally won the set at 8-5 with a grand smash by Van Ryn.

The Americans then held the initiative throughout, Van Ryn's perfectly controlled volleying and Lott's slashing service, which he did not lose once, giving them a straight sets win.

The True Cochet At Wimbledon

Army Champion Well Beaten By Frenchman

VINES AND AUSTIN DROP SETS.

(By A. Wallis Myers.)

On No. 1 Court while the surprise Farquharson beating Perry was being registered, Cochet was showing how he might regain the championship. He lost the opening set to Raymond Tuckey, serving with a soldier's ardour, but in the next three sets there was only one man on the landscape. The little Frenchman lost a game here and there—he often does when he is taking the risks of genius—but so far as this match was concerned he commanded its destiny.

There were no loose or casual periods; he was moving rhythmically all the time: the Cochet pigeon-holes, which we know so well, were found with deft exactness.

It would be wrong to say that a new Cochet is at Wimbledon; the truth is that the old Cochet has returned.

But not every seeded player had a progress so serene.

A. T. England, a young Northern who qualified at Chapel Allerton, had the temerity to take the second set from Vines and to lead the champion 5-3 in the third set—he broke the big man's service.

But England could advance no further.

Vines recovered his lost ground with a withering service, reserving his keenest ace for the set point. How these Californian giants can gather momentum at will! In the fourth set Vines dropped only one game.

AUSTIN IN TROUBLE

Then Austin was, in trouble, happily countered, against Brugnon. This was a see-saw match. Breaking his service high to Austin's back-hand, Brugnon collected a string of games. With the first two sets divided he led 5-2 in the third. Then the Frenchman faded, and Austin went straight out with a sequence of ten games.

I gathered afterwards that he had started the match with a racket 1/2oz lighter than usual; his driving control left him. When an exchange was made Austin got it back. None the less, Brugnon gave us a glimpse of his still-shining talent.

Crawford and Lee were other seeded men of the British race who sacrificed sets. The first lost a winning lead to Hector Fisher, the Oxford Blue, now representing Switzerland, whom he had encountered in Paris, to scramble home after five sets. Fisher only played well in patches after his initial success, and Lee's stout-hearted drives pierced his defences.

Few people had seen Crawford in a lazy mood this year, and he did not assume one yesterday against Martin Legay. But there was a period in the second set when the Australian's concentration appeared to leave him; the long reach of the Frenchman got its reward. In the other three sets Crawford always piloted the ball into regions where Martin Legay was confounded in the hunt.

NUNO'S FINE EFFORT

A match splendidly fought from start to finish was that between Lester Stofen, of California, and Nuno, the young Japanese champion. Both men were new to Wimbledon; both upheld its honour in giving their best in pinew and soul. The tall Stofen, using his service as a spearhead, emerged victorious in the end, but if Nuno had won the third set, from which he was only separated by a single point—he had saved several set points against him—the story might have been different.

For sheer mobility and the capacity to save a vital rally this self-possessed youth from Kobe has no equal in the lists. I wish I could have seen the whole of this engaging contest.

SUTTER HARD PRESSED

Clifford Sutter was never secure against Boussus until the second set was pocketed. The Frenchman's left-handed volleys, seemed to close familiar avenues for the American; he could not find a way through. A set up, Boussus broke through the service to lead 6-5 and 7-6, but in the seventeenth game he missed an easy smash, and then lost his service to love. Once through his crisis Sutter went merrily forward.

Allen Stedman, of New Zealand, another newcomer, showed his mettle by defeating L. de Borman, the former Belgian champion, in three sets. Stedman had put out Cliff on Monday. Hughes and Satoh were unthreatened, whilst Keith Gledhill was in great form against Adrian Quist. Young America, by service and volleying strength, would not let young Australia capture a set.

Allen Brown, of Reading, carried Robins, the South African champion, over a full course—another proof of skill too rarely exploited in this country.

MCGRATH SCRAMBLES HOME

Then—one of the day's late surprises—Vivian McGrath only scrambled home against Siga, of Czechoslovakia, at 7-5 in the final set. The Prague player, although lame, led 4-3 and 5-4. Young McGrath, using his two hands, had to pull out some of his famous drop shots. And how coolly, their advent veiled, these coups were made.

Miss Scriven had the honour of opening the women's championship on the centre court; her vis-a-vis was Mlle. Sigart, her doubles partner. The fluent style of the Belgian champion, creating beautiful strokes, perfectly timed, was inclined to obscure the ground shot strength of the English girl; sheer art made Miss Scriven's game appear inferior. But the latter had the stronger attack and the greater precision under pressure; even a relatively weak service could not check her progress.

When Miss Scriven had pushed forward to 5-3 and 30-love in the first set, her phase of dominance was abruptly checked by the foot-fault judge. These penalties, of course, are necessary, but they seemed to come yesterday at nerve-shattering moments.

Miss Scriven's mental thread was broken, and Mlle. Sigart squared the set before another burst of speed won two games. The second set was as close, the Belgian scoring with several drop volleys.

EASY FOR MRS. MOODY

Mrs. Moody, with Lenglen's certainty, opened her title's defence with two love sets, the vision of greatness all too brief for the packed stands. Mrs. Godfrey showed how she once beat Miss Helen Wills on the centre court by dismissing Mlle. Rosambert. The third player in France allowed Mrs. Godfrey to keep the initiative; perhaps unfamiliar turf made her cautious.

A Franco-German duel between Mlle. Goldschmidt, and Fraulein Horn, long and strenuous, ended in favour of the German, who had a slight moral advantage all through. But Mlle. Goldschmidt's first visit to Wimbledon revealed her as a plucky fighter. She had Mlle. Lenglen as a supporter in the wings.

Among the easy winners were Miss Round, Miss Nutball, and Miss Stammer, but Mrs. Burke, the American, had a fierce struggle against Mrs. Owen. It was perhaps lucky for her that Mrs. Owen's stamina gave out in the final set. Miss Noel offered Mrs. Pittman a stern fight, but could not quite stay the course.

Golf is at least fifty per cent. mental, and the success of a player's game depends to an extraordinary degree on the mind-presentation of the swing. Golfers all down the ages have been trying to find some mental picture that would be a guide to consistently good form, and there is nothing more interesting than to study the different points that have been specially emphasized at different times in the development of the instructional side of the game.—Archie Compston.

CADET WOODS WINS KING'S PRIZE AT BISLEY

Nottingham University's First Success.

London, To-day. Cadet D. E. Woods, of the Nottingham University Officers' Training Corps, won the King's Prize at Bisley on Saturday with an aggregate score of 287. This is the Nottingham University's first success in a competition dating back to 1885. Only other winners have been members of O.T.C. Units during the year of their success. Last year C. S. M. Bayly won the trophy with a score of 289. —Reuter.

20TH R.A. WIN WATER POLO LEAGUE

Beat 24th For The Kowloon Title.

"HAT TRICK" FOR ELLINGTON

One of the best games in the Garrison Water Polo League was witnessed at Stonecutter's on Wednesday last, when the 20th Battery, R. A., defeated the 24th Battery, R. A. by 5 goals to 2 in a fast and gruelling game to win the Kowloon Section of the Garrison Water Polo League.

Hitherto both teams had retained an unbeaten record.

Better combination and a stubborn defence played a large part in the 20th Battery's win, the 24th Battery only finding their true form in the second half, when, in spite of some excellent openings, they were unable to break through and score.

The winners led at the interval by the odd goal in three.

From the start the winners showed fine form and a good pass to Selly saw the latter score in the opening minute. Ellington, taking the ball from a free throw, scored the winner's second goal with a good effort.

Just before the interval Swatton swam through to score the 24th Battery's only goal with a powerful shot.

In the second-half the winners enjoyed most of the play, and Ellington, playing his finest game this season, recorded the "hat-trick" with three very fine efforts, and Scott replied for the losers from 12 yards with a well-placed shot.

Mr. E. F. Selk (European "Y") refereed:—
20th Battery, R. A.—Greenfields; Jonyson and Tyrell; Gledning; Gardner, Ellington and Selly.
24th Battery, R. A.—Hubbard; Wren and Tullett; Swatton; Warren, Scott and Morris.

H.Q. Lincolns Win From "D" Company.

Playing at Shamshuipo last Wednesday, Headquarters Wing, Lincolnshire Regiment proved too good for "D" Coy. of the Lincolns by 6 goals to 1 in the Kowloon Section of the Garrison Water Polo League.

The winners took things easily throughout and opened the scoring in the first minute of the game through Mackman, who beat Heath with a fast shot.

Malpas of "DON" Coy., equalised with a fine solo effort, but Headquarters Wing again took the lead when Maddison (2) Steel (2) and Chicken scored.

Cpl. Berriman refereed.
H. Q. Wing—Larthe; Blythe and Mackman; Chicken; Steel Maddison and Guttridge.
"D" Coy.—Heath; Shnabe and Park; Malpas; McLeod, Parkinson and Vickers.

TENNIS LEAGUE

CHAMPIONS SHOULD BEAT THE CLUB

Goldman And Sullivan May Prove Obstacle.

INDIANS SHOULD SMASH THE C.R.C. "B" 100 PER CENT

Though without the services of Ho Ka Lau the Chinese Recreation Club should overcome the Club in the premier Tennis League, programme this afternoon.

The progress of L. Goldman and A. L. Sullivan against the champions will be watched with interest, and should this pair reveal their best form, the Club might even force a draw.

The holders' second string are in danger of losing their 100 per cent. record when they visit the I. R. C. this afternoon.

The Rumjahn cousins should secure three sets and J. A. E. Casumbly and I. M. A. Razack would not surprise if they secured the two other necessary sets for victory.

South China "A," the Causeway Bay Club's most formidable rivals, are at home to the Recreation, and should secure two more points in the championship race.

The following are the forecasted results of to-day's programme:

Chinese "A"	v	Hong Kong C. C.	(at Causeway Bay).
Indian R. C.	v	Chinese "B"	(at Causeway Bay).
Kowloon C. C.	v	Saigonkoo.	(at the K. C. C.).
South China "A"	v	Recreation	(at King's Park).
South China "B"	v	University	(at King's Park).

U. S. NAVY BEAT SOUTH CHINA

Matty Chang Hits Only Homer.

HEALD PLAYS WELL

(By IKE)

The American Navy triumphed over the local Baseball Champions, South China A.A., yesterday afternoon at Caroline Hill by a score of 13 to 8 in a sensational seven inning game.

The sailors scored nine runs in the fifth inning, the crowd cheering continuously as the men crossed the home-plate.

Matty Chang smacked the ball out into the field beyond the reach of the centre fielder and scored the only home run of the game. Sieto and T. Kim banded out two base hits.

The sailors scored three runs in the second inning when the local team became excited and made several bad plays. The most exciting inning of the game was witnessed in the fifth when the sailors made nine runs. Five batters were given their base on balls, pitched by Ed. Chang, who hit one man and forced several others in to score for the Navy.

For the first time this season Matty Chang went to the pitcher's mound in the beginning of the sixth. He pitched two innings of good baseball, and struck out two of the sailors. No one made a hit while he was pitching.

Patterson pitched the entire seven innings for the Americans and did some exceptionally fine pitching.

As usual T. Kim, South China's star short-stop this season, played an excellent game and lost no time in pegging the ball to T. Chan at first-base, besides being the only man on the local team to knock out a two-bagger.

Head, the centre-fielder for the Navy, played real baseball and caught five flies out in the field, and scored two runs for his team.

This is the second game the Navy have won on the Caroline Hill diamond and they certainly deserved yesterday's win as they played a hard game from the start to the finish.

The box-scores were as follows.

West Indies In Good

Position Against England in Test

London, To-day.

A CROWD of 15,000 saw Barrow and Headley add 200 runs for the West Indian's second wicket in the Test against England at Old Trafford on Saturday, but after Wyatt fell, bowled Barrow, four wickets fell for 187 runs, the tourists compiling 335 for 5 before the close of play.

George Headley, the "Black Bradman" of the side, carried his bat for 145, scored out of 307 in 315 minutes. He has hit fifteen boundaries in his effort.

TSANG HO FOOK, TUIT SING-CHO AND MISS LEUNG YUK-CHAN WIN C.B.C. EVENTS

(By Crawl.)

Swimming well-judged races W. Campbell, of the European Y. M. C. A., and Miss Yeung Sau King, of South China, won the Men's and Ladies' Sections of the Invitation Harbour Race held under the auspices of the Chinese Bathing Club at North Point yesterday afternoon.

Campbell returned the very excellent time of 25 minutes, 45.2/5 seconds over a course of approximately one mile, while Miss Yeung Sau-king returned a time of 32 minutes 36.3/5 seconds. There was a fairly strong current running at the time, although the swimmers were actually handicapped by rollers caused by the passing of many ships at the time of the race.

W. Campbell, who is a Lance Corporal in the South Wales Borderers, won the Army Harbour swim last year in record time and was placed second to L. Rozapetra in the Colony event. He is a regular member of the Y.M.C.A. Water Polo team.

Miss Yeung Sau King has an unbeaten record in this event and is one of the most versatile lady swimmers the Colony has produced.

A tremendous gathering estimated at well over 2,000 crowded the Chinese Bathing Club's pavilion, and long before the race was due to commence motor boats, launches and row boats were seen to be making for Hung Hom, the starting-point of the races.

The actual course of the race was from about 200 yards off the East end of the Kowloon Dockyard, and finishing at the Chinese Bathing Club.

Seventy-eight entrants took the plunge, and 73 finished the course, a remarkable figure.

The race was witnessed and followed by about five hundred people in motor boats, launches and in hundreds of rowing boats.

The event was divided into five sections comprising, Open Men and Ladies, Chinese Bathing Club Men and Ladies, and a Veterans' Section.

Ladies Go First

The Ladies and Veterans took the plunge first and Miss Yeung Sau-king (S.C.A.A.), Mrs. A. C. Schreuder ("Y" Ladies) and Miss Leung Wing-han (S.C.A.A.) were seen bunched together for the first quarter of a mile.

The men took the plunge four minutes later and Campbell (Y.M.C.A.), Kwok Chun-hang (S.C.A.A.) and Shek Kam-pui, (Y. Companions) were all grouped together, Campbell being slightly in the lead.

I was in a launch following the race and was able to catch up to the women and see how they were progressing. After 600 yards, Miss Yeung Sau-king, breaking into a powerful breast stroke, forged ahead of Mrs. Schreuder, who was resorting to the back stroke.

Miss Leung Wing-han (S.C.A.A.) was close upon Mrs. Schreuder's heels, while Miss Lam To-lai was not far behind.

Campbell Takes Lead About a quarter of a mile behind Campbell (Y.M.C.A.) had taken the lead in the men's event, and swimming a steady crawl stroke, he gradually improved his position until he was about 75 yards ahead of Kwok Chun-hang. The latter was using his well-executed breast stroke at a fairly fast and even pace.

W. Schreuder was not far behind Kwok Chun-hang, but was evidently feeling the strain of the exhausting breast stroke he was using.

At approximately the half mile mark Miss Yeung Sau-king improved her pace and was seen about 100 yards in front of Mrs. Schreuder, while Miss Lam To-lai (Chung Sing) and Miss Leung Wing-han (S.C.A.A.) were gradually creeping up on Mrs. Schreuder.

Campbell Catches Up Ladies Campbell was swimming beautifully, and had still an advantage of about 70 yards on Kwok Chun-hang, while Shek Kam-pui had definitely taken the lead over W. Schreuder.

Nearing home, Miss Yeung Sau-king broke into her well-known crawl stroke, while Campbell, who was now well ahead of the rest of the field, was about 40 yards ahead of MISS YEUNG SAU KING who won the Ladies Harbour Race yesterday.

Miss Yeung Sau-king—a wonderful achievement.

Over the last couple of hundred yards the applause from a tremendous crowd of spectators could be heard, and when Campbell swam up through the pier heads he was given a wonderful reception by the crowd.

Kwok Comes Second

Kwok Chun-hang, who also had broken into the crawl, passed Miss Yeung Sau-king about 100 yards from home, and was also given a tumultuous welcome by the cheering crowds.

Miss Yeung Sau-king, followed by Shek Kam-pui and W. Schreuder, finished in that order.

At the conclusion Mr. Kwok Chan, Chairman of the Chinese Bathing Club made a short speech congratulating the swimmers on their excellent efforts and also introduced Marshall Li Chai-sum, a former Governor of Kwangtung Province, Marshal Chan Ming-shiu, a Life President of the Chinese Bathing Club, who also distributed the prizes, and General Ong Chiao-wun, the famous defender of the Woosung Fort during the trouble in Shanghai last year.

The United Artists Film Corporation (Chinese) took moving pictures of the race and also of the swimmers as they arrived at the finish.

Unplaced Swimmers

The following was the list of unplaced men swimmers in the order they finished the course, the times of the other seven of the first ten being given:—W. Schreuder (Y.M.C.A.), Time: 29 mins. 18.2/5 secs. Wong Sun-man (S.C.A.A.), Time: 28 mins. 51.2/5 secs. Chan Fook-sing (C.B.C.), Time: 30 mins. 26 secs. The Badge of Policeman O'Roon people's feet in the Park this day. I will save your badge and your honour, besides having the jolliest lark I've been blessed with since we licked Spain."

Promptly on time the counterfeit presentment of Mounted Policeman O'Roon single-footed into the Park on his chestnut steed. In a uniform two men who are unlike will look alike; each other in feature and figure will appear as twin brothers. So Remsen trotted down the bridge-path, enjoying himself hugely, so few real pleasures do ten-millionaires have.

Along the driveway in the early morning spun a victoria drawn by a pair of fiery bays. There was something foreign about the affair, for the Park is rarely used in the morning except by unimportant people who love to be healthy, poor and wise. In the vehicle sat an old gentleman with snowy side-whiskers and Scotch plaid cap which could not be worn while driving except the lady of Remsen's heart — by a personage. At his side sat the lady who looked like pomegranate blossoms and the gibbous moon.

Remsen met them coming. At the instant of their passing her eyes looked into his, and but for the ever-coward heart of a true lover he could have sworn that she flushed a faint pink. He trotted on for twenty yards, and then wheeled his horse at the sound of run-away hoofs. The bays had bolted.

Remsen sent his chestnut after the victoria like a shot. There was work cut out for the impersonator of Policeman O'Roon. The chestnut ranged alongside the off bay thirty seconds after the chase began, rolled his eye back at Remsen, and said in the only manner open to policeman's horse:

"Well, you duffer, are you going to do your share? You're not O'Roon, but it seems to me if you'd lean to the right you could reach the reins of the foolish slow-running bay — ah! you're all right; O'Roon couldn't have done it more neatly."

The runaway team was tugged to an inglorious halt by Remsen's tough muscles. The driver released his hands from the wrapped reins, jumped from his seat and stood at the heads of the team. The chestnut, approving the new rider, danced and pranced, revelling equinely the subdued bays. Remsen, lingering, was dimly conscious of a vague, impossible, unnecessary old gentleman in a Scotch cap who talked incessantly about something. And he was acutely conscious of a pair of violet eyes that would have drawn Saint Pyrites from his iron pillar — or whatever the illusion is — and of the lady's smile and look — a little frightened, but a look that, with the ever-coward heart of a true lover, he could not yet construe. They were asking his name and bestowing upon him well-bred thanks for his heroic deed, and the Scotch cap was especially babbling and insistent. But the eloquent appeal was in the eyes of the lady.

A little thrill of satisfaction ran through Remsen because he had a name to give which, without undue pride, was worthy of being spoken in high places, and a small fortune which, with due pride, he could leave at his end without disgrace.

He opened his lips to speak, and closed them again. Who was he? Mounted Policeman O'Roon. The badge and the honour of his comrades were in his hands. If Ellesworth Remsen, ten-millionaire and Knickerbocker, had just rescued pomegranate blossoms and Scotch cap from possible death, where was Policeman O'Roon? Off his beat, exposed, disgraced, discharged. Love had come, but before that there had been something that demanded precedence — the fellowship of men on battlefields fighting an alien foe.

Remsen touched his cap, looked between the chestnut's ears, and took refuge in vernacularity. "Don't mention it," he said stolidly. "We policemen are paid to do these things. It's our duty."

And he rode away — rode away cursing nobles' oblige, but knowing he could never have done anything else.

At the end of the day Remsen sent the chestnut to his stable and went to O'Roon's room. The policeman was again a well-set-up, affable, cool young man who sat by the window smoking cigars.

"I wish you and the rest of the police force and all badges, horses, brass buttons and men who can't drink two glasses of brut without getting upset were at the devil," said Remsen feelingly.

O'Roon smiled with evident satisfaction.

"Good old Remsen," he said affably. "I know all about it. They trailed me down and cornered me here two hours ago. There was a little row at home, you know, and I cut sticks just to show them. I don't believe I told you that my governor was the Earl of Ardsley. Funny you should bob against them in the Park. If you damaged that horse of mine I'll never forgive you. I'm going to buy and take him back with me. Oh yes, and I think my sister — Lady Angela, you know — wants particularly for you to come up to the hotel with me this evening. Didn't lose my badge, did you, Remsen? I've got to turn that in at Headquarters when I resign."

SAILING TIMES ALTERED

Dollar Line Changes.

The Dollar Steamship Lines announce that they have advanced the sailing of the s.s. President Grant, which is due in Hong Kong from San Francisco on Monday.

The President Grant will now sail at 4 p.m. on Tuesday for Manila, instead of 6 p.m. as previously announced.

On her homeward voyage, her sailing time has been advanced 48 hours. She will arrive in Hong Kong from Manila at 6 a.m. on Sunday, July 30, and will sail for San Francisco via Shanghai, Kobe, Yokohama and Honolulu at 6 a.m. on Monday, July 31.

1,500 YEARS OLD SHIPS.

A ship which has been buried for more than 1,500 years is now on view at the historical museum in Gothenburg. This vessel is one which was discovered by a farmer digging in a ditch at Galtaback on the West Coast of Sweden, and it has been carefully restored by experts to something of its former glory.

It is a vessel of 14 metres length, clinker-built of oak with oak nail fastenings. Its shape is very beautiful, though its carrying capacity is considerable for its size, and it shows a very much higher development in the art of shipbuilding and navigation than has hitherto been attributed to its period. This has been fixed with little doubt at 400 A.D. It has undoubtedly been a vessel of considerable seagoing capabilities, being fitted either for rowing or sailing; complete with a spare mast and sail.

SHANGHAI

H.M.S. Sandpiper, fabricated in the shipbuilding yard of Messrs. John I. Thornycroft & Co. Ltd., at Southampton, was shipped in cases to Shanghai for re-erection at the Kiangnan Dock.

The keel was laid on April 5 and the complete re-erection prior to being handed over to the British Admiralty is a matter of four months.

Dimensions of the gunboat are as follows: Length 160 ft., breadth moulded 30 ft., depth 5 ft., draft 2 ft., speed 11½ knots. Her machinery consists of twin reciprocating triple expansion engines of 800 h.p. each, and her armament consists of one 8.1 howitzer and one sixpounder.

LESSON SERMON

First Church of Christ,
Scientist—Hong Kong.

"Truth" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 23.

The Golden Text was: "The Lord is good; his mercy is everlasting; and his truth endureth to all generations" (Ps. 100: 5).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Thus saith the Lord; I am returned unto Zion, and will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem; and Jerusalem shall be called a city of truth; and the mountain of the Lord of hosts the holy mountain. . . . Thus saith the Lord of hosts; Behold, I will save my people from the east country, and from the west country; and I will bring them, and they shall dwell in the midst of Jerusalem; and they shall be my people in truth and in righteousness. . . . These are the things that she shall do; Speak ye every man the truth to his neighbour; execute the judgment of truth and peace in your gates" (Zech. 8: 3, 7, 8, 16).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Truth destroys falsity and error, for light and darkness cannot dwell together. Light extinguishes the darkness, and the Scripture declares that there is 'no night there.' To Truth there is no error,—all is Truth. . . . The best sermon ever preached is Truth, practised and demonstrated by the destruction of sin, sickness and death" (P. 474, 201).

THE TRANSFORMATION OF ENGLAND.

guilty, they ought to suffer the penalty of the law of the country they have injured. But to offer to release them if the trade embargo is removed is an insult.

Yet Litvinoff, who stands for all this, is one of a select luncheon party given by the Prime Minister in Downing-street, on which Palmerston and Disraeli and Gladstone look down from the walls.

Rebel Guest.
There is another guest added by Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and his daughter to their very exclusive list. Senator Connolly belongs to the Parliament of the Irish Free State, which has abolished the oath of allegiance to King George, and is now illegally detaining sums of money which under a bargain incorporated in a recent Act of Parliament, is owing to the landlords by the tenants now occupying their estates. "Bon appetit, Messieurs!"

The twin pillars of honest and civilised government are, in my judgment, the preservation of personal liberty and the protection of private property. Personal liberty is openly curtailed on all sides by the substitution of orders of officials without appeal, for the elementary right of every Briton to have his case tried by a court of law.

Indeed, so rapid has been this growth of bureaucratic tyranny that a book has been written against it by Lord Chief Justice Hewart, who is a far greater authority than the Lord Chancellor, the creature of political party. Lord Hewart has warned us against this ousting of the authority of the Law Courts by the decisions of officials on laws made by corrupt Parliaments.

War Responsible.
As for the protection of private property, there is none left, as you will realise if you read the figures given by Mr. Hore-Bellah, the Financial Secretary to the Treasury.

Of the total expenditure of the country 60 per cent. is obtained by direct taxation, paid by less than 1 per cent. of the population. Of this 60 per cent. more than 60—in fact, 65 per cent.—is paid in income-tax, sur-tax and death duties by 90,000 individuals, who also pay indirect taxes on the commodities consumed by their employees or dependents. Of the working classes seven millions pay no direct taxes at all. But why paint the lily of Mr. Bellah's arithmetic?

The cardinal pillars of England's policy to-day seem to be (1) subservience to America; (2) the sacrifice of India to the preservation of Mr. Baldwin.

Yes, England has been "transformed" by the war.

CHAMPIONS LOSE AT KOWLOON DOCKS

CIVIL SERVICE WIN BY 40 SHOTS

HYDE LAY'S RINK SCORE 8

CRAIGENGOWER, the premier league bowls champions, and the Kowloon Bowling Green, leaders in both divisions, were defeated on Saturday.

Beaten on two rinks the champions lost to Kowloon Docks by 7 shots, the Docks thus repeating their success last year. The Bowling Green succumbed unexpectedly to the K.C.C. in the senior division, and lost ingloriously to the Police in the junior division.

The Civil Service attempted to emulate their win by 71 shots against Tai-koo last year, but had to be content with a win by 40 shots on Saturday. Another big win was recorded when the Recreio trounced the K.C.C. by 44 shots. The Police recorded their first home win of the season when they beat the Recreio by the narrowest possible margin.

A. Hyde Lay's rink (W. Hyde, J. A. Howe and E. C. Fincher) recorded an 8 against H. Nish's all-conquering rink to win by 15 shots. This is the second eight of the season, W. S. Drake's rink (C. L. Farmer, G. H. Owen, and W. E. Hale) having achieved the feat against A. E. Carey's rink in the junior division.

S. Eccleshall and Bob Marks were skips to return sevens, while J. W. Deakin, W. Mair, H. V. Pearce and C. A. Lopes all had sixes. By recording a 25 shots win over W. Wotherpoon's rink J. W. Deakin's rink (H. E. Strange, S. Alderman and F. J. Jones) recorded the biggest win of the season.

CYCLING AROUND NEW TERRITORIES.

Seven Europeans Make Trip.
60-MILES IN 7 HOURS
A party of seven Kowloon residents mounted on bicycles yesterday toured the New Territories, covering 60 miles in about seven hours.
The party consisted of the three Fowler brothers, G.H. S. and F., C. Chadderton, A. B. Henry, R. J. Luke and E. Flemmington.
A start was made from the Majestic Theatre at about 9.30 a.m., Chadderton leading the way up to as far as Shatin. From that point he forged ahead and was soon lost to view.
Chadderton reached Castle Peak at about 1.30 p.m. and was followed an hour later by the rest of the party.
Only one casualty was reported on the way. S. Fowler shooting over the edge of the road just before Castle Peak was reached. A nice firm paddy field made a fine temporary landing ground for machine and rider.
A start for home was made at about 6 p.m. and after some grueling over the hills round Castle Peak, the party made easy going, reaching home at 7.50 p.m.

NEWS YORK TEAMS TRIUMPH

Lou Gehrig hit his nineteenth homer of the season, and is now five behind Babe Ruth and eight in arrears of Jimmy Foxx in the home run parade. Al Simmons, who has not been showing his best form for the White Sox hit his twelfth four-bagger of the season. Results as cabled by Reuter:
American League.
Cleveland 1 6 1
New York 8 8 1
Lou Gehrig hit a homer.
Cleveland 1 7 0
New York 8 11 1
Walker hit a homer.
Detroit 12 17 1
Washington 8 11 2

P.I. DELEGATES IN COLONY.

Proceeding To Pacific Conference.

The delegates who are to represent the Philippine Islands at the International Pacific Conference shortly to be held at Banff, Canada, are passengers on the "Empress of Russia," which arrived in the Colony this morning.
The delegation is composed of Judge M. Camus Mr. L. E. Aucoin, Dr. Tan, and Professor Macaraig, of the University of the Philippines.

CANCER CASES IN LONDON.

Experimental Treatment With New Anti-Serum.

London.
Twenty-four cancer patients, whose cases are hopeless under existing methods, are being treated voluntarily by means of experiments with a new anti-serum treatment under the direction of Dr. Thomas Lumden at the London Hospital.
This was disclosed at the annual meeting of the Empire cancer campaign.
Dr. Lumden stated guardedly that the results of the treatment, which are a crucial test of ten years of special research, he considers justify further intensive investigation along the lines of research which have been begun.—Reuter.

CUT IN U.S. SUGAR FREIGHT RATES

Washington.
The Interstate Commerce Commission has authorized reductions of freight rates in five different sugar rate cases, involving shipments from eastern, western and southern cities to Chicago and elsewhere in the Mid-West territory.
Transcontinental carriers were given permission to establish lower rates from San Francisco to Chicago and St. Louis than to intermediate points.
